SLPSoft Launched

SLPSoft is to provide products and services to enable the modeling and the managing of projects

Tucson, Arizona June 2, 2011 Today Volvick Derosé announced the launch of SLPSoft. SLPSoft will provide products and services to help managers and people who manage businesses manage their employees. When working in a project, it is always good for everybody in that project to have a good view of that project in their minds; including the managers and the employees who work in that project. SLPSoft provides products and services to enable project managers and employees to have a good view of a project before executing the project and after executing the project.

While working in a project, in order for the employees and the manager to execute that project, they must communicate together about what they are doing. Given that communication is what connects all the employees and the managers together to enable them to execute that project, by modeling that project related to their communications, it makes sense for them to correct any error in advance before they execute the project. This is the reason SLPSoft exists to provide project managers and employees software and services to help them model and manager their applications.

Currently SLPSoft has 3 products: Interactive Application Modeling which enables users to produce a quick model of their projects without worry about the properties of the entities that make up their projects. The Interactive Project Modeling provides more capability to users in terms of modeling and managing their projects; while the Interactive Project Manager is geared toward project managers to enable them to be interactive to everybody that is a part of a project.

While communication is not new to anybody, but project managers always understand the importance of communication in their projects. By using the new concept and products from SLPSoft , we hope that project managers will make significant improvement in the way they manage and execute their applications.
